QUESTIONNAIRE SURVEYS OF THE RELIGIOUS ATTITUDES OF STUDENTS AT HARVARD, RADCLIFFE, AND LOS ANGELES CITY COLLEGE (LACC) WERE CONDUCTED IN 1946-48 AND AGAIN IN 1966-67. SELECTED RESULTS FROM THE TWO STUDIES ARE COMPARED. AT EACH OF THE INSTITUTIONS RELIGIOUS BELIEFS HAVE BECOME MORE LIBERAL SINCE 1946, BUT RELIGIOUS COMMITMENT AND TRADITIONAL RELIGIOUS BEHAVIOR HAVE BECOME LESS COMMON. STUDENTS PROFESS LESS NEED FOR RELIGIOUS ORIENTATION AND BELIEF. FEWER EXPRESS BELIEF IN A PERSONAL GOD. IN THE HARVARD-RADCLIFFE STUDIES, WOMEN EXPRESSED LESS RELIGIOUS CONSERVATISM THAN DID MEN. OF THE THREE INSTITUTIONS, STUDENTS AT LACC SHOWED THE MOST CONSERVATIVE ATTITUDES TOWARD RELIGION. CHANGES IN STUDENT ATTITUDES AT LACC WERE IN THE SAME DIRECTION AS THOSE AT HARVARD AND RADCLIFFE, BUT THESE CHANGES WERE LESS PRONOUNCED. (A SAMPLE QUESTIONNAIRE AND TABULATED DATA ARE INCLUDED.) "RELIGIOUS ATTITUDES OF COLLEGE STUDENTS AT HARVARD UNIVERSITY, RADCLIFFE COLLEGE, AND LOS ANGELES CITY COLLEGE:

Highlights of Comparative Studies made in 1946-48 and in 1966-67"

PURPOSE OF THE STUDY

In November 1946, Professor Gordon Allport of Harvard University and his assistants studied the religious attitudes of a cross section of students at Harvard and Radcliffe and later published a report of this study in the Journal of Psychology 1948, 25, 3-33, titled "Religion of the Postwar College Student."

After the Journal article had come to the attention of personnel at L.A.C.C., a committee of interested faculty obtained permission from Professor Allport to replicate the study at L.A.C.C. The questionnaire used at Harvard-Radcliffe was administered in 1948 to a cross-section of L.A.C.C. students and the findings disseminated in a report by Benjamin K. Swartz and Harold Heywood, "A Comparative Study of the Religious Attitudes of Post-War College Students at Harvard College -- Radcliffe College -- L.A.C.C."

In October 1966, Professor Allport, in a letter to Mr. Charles Boss of the L.A.C.C. Sociology Department, inquired as to whether L.A.C.C. would care to join Harvard and Radcliffe in administering the same questionnaire twenty years later to a comparable sample of students. Mr. Boss forwarded Professor Allport's letter to President Glenn Gooder, who in turn forwarded the request to the Office of Research and Development. All concerned felt that, if at all feasible, L.A.C.C. should cooperate in the study, and a letter agreeing to participate was sent to Professor Allport.

PROCEDURE OF THE STUDY

Following receipt of the L.A.C.C. letter expressing cooperation, Mr. Dean R. Hoge of Harvard responded with a suggested plan for conducting the study. Essentially, Mr. Hoge offered to process the data and send computer printouts and an analysis of his findings if we would arrange to administer questionnaire to about 500 students approximating a cross-section of the L.A.C.C. student body.

Through the cooperation of Dr. Max Sheanin, Chairman of the Psychology Department and faculty of that department, the questionnaire was administered in March, 1967 to about 500 students enrolled in Psychology I. The completed questionnaires were returned to Mr. Hoge, and a preliminary analysis was later received from Mr. Hoge. The findings of this study are essentially highlights selected from the data and analysis furnished by Mr. Hoge.

The final report of the project will be a detailed sophisticated comparative analysis of the findings of the survey conducted at Harvard, Radcliffe, L.A.C.C., and other participating colleges. For information concerning this complete analysis, the reader is advised to contact Mr. Dean R. Hoge of the Department of Social Relations at Harvard University.

FINDINGS

The following tables present some of the comparative statistics found at Harvard, Radcliffe, and L.A.C.C., both now and twenty years ago. Statements in the tables are abbreviated in some instances. The complete questionnaire is appended to this report.

CONCLUSIONS

The Harvard researchers report two major findings of their study at Harvard and Radcliffe:

- (1) Since 1946 religious beliefs have become more liberal, traditional religious behavior (Church attendance, prayer) has declined, and religious commitment is rarer. The changes from 1946 to 1966 were greater than had been anticipated.
- (2) The women reported less religious conservatism than the men, contrary to almost every study of religious attitudes and behavior done in America or England.

The change at L.A.C.C. over twenty years has been less than at Harvard-Radcliffe. Beliefs about the Deity and about the Person of Christ have changed little at L.A.C.C., but they have changed considerably at Harvard-Radcliffe.

Following are some observations relevant to significant findings of the study:

- (1) Both men and women at L.A.C.C. profess less need for religious orientation and belief in 1967 than in 1948 (Table 1). The decline in yes responses of less than 10% is considerably below the Harvard and Radcliffe figures of 17% and 27% respectively, however.
- (2) In 1946, 52% of the Harvard men and 49% of the Radcliffe women expressed belief in a personal God (Table 6, responses 1 and 2). In 1966 these figures dropped to 35% and 31% respectively. At L.A.C.C., the drop was negligible with figures of 49% and 67% for men and women respectively in 1948, compared with 47% and 66% in 1967.
- (3) 48% of the L.A.C.C. women in both 1948 and 1967 expressed their belief in Christ as the human incarnation of God. The corresponding figures in 1948 and 1967 for Radcliffe students were 42% and 24%. Both L.A.C.C. men and Harvard students showed a decline of about 7% (Table 7).
- (4) The 1967 L.A.C.C. sample has a much lower percentage of Jews and a slightly higher percentage of Roman Catholics than the 1948 sample. It has fewer Protestant men and more Protestant women than the 1948 sample. Other differences are small (Table 3). A crosstab analysis performed at Harvard indicates that, putting both sexes together, the most stable traditions are: Judaism, which retains 73% of those reared in it; Catholicism, retaining 60%; Protestantism, retaining 58%.

- (5) Five of six L.A.C.C. students claim their college experience has not affected their religious attitude (Table 8). About two thirds of the Harvard-Radcliffe group make a similar claim.
- (6) The shift since 1948 is toward the perception of more conflict between science and religion, but not irreconcilable conflict. Those respondents choosing responses #4 and #5 in Table 9 were asked if science must give way; or if religion must give way in the perceived conflict; 71% of the L.A.C.C. men and 80% of the women said that religion must give way. In the Harvard-Radcliffe Study the figures were 97% and 96%. In summary, a little over 1/3 of the students see little conflict between science and religion; 2/3 see some conflict and most of them think religion must give way.
- (7) The L.A.C.C. overall pattern relating to Church attitude (Table 10) is a slight decrease in positive attitudes. The L.A.C.C. students have a very much more favorable attitude toward the Church than Harvard and Radcliffe students, and the decrease in favorable attitudes from 1948 to 1967 is very much smaller at L.A.C.C. than at Harvard and Radcliffe.

The detailed Harvard analysis of the data presents adjusted percentages to lessen bias in the samples and considers changes in the nature of the college populations over the twenty year period. These sophistications produce little change in the figures presented in this report, however, and trends indicated here appear to have validity.

Appreciation is hereby expressed to Mr. Dean R. Hoge of Harvard University for permission to disseminate these findings to faculty of L.A.C.C. and other interested persons.

ATTITUDE INVENTORY: ASPECTS OF RELIGIOUS BELIEF

Instructions: This Inventory does not ask you to give your name. It is strictly anonymous.

At the same time, its successful use in research imposes two requirements:

- (1) It should not be answered too hastily. Some questions will require reflection. Authentic and well-considered statements, without influence from outside, are wanted. So, please take your time, and ponder the questions adequately before answering them.
- (2) In order not to bias the sample, all papers must be returned.

1. _____ The Church is the one sure and infallible foundation of civilized life. Every member of society ought to be educated in it and required to support it.
  2. _____ On the whole the Church stands for the best in human life, although certain minor shortcomings and errors are necessarily apparent in it, as in all human institutions.

6. _____ Insufficient familiarity with the problem.
7. _____ A different attitude, as follows: (briefly)

14. The following several questions concern the nature of the Deity. Check the one statement which most nearly expresses your belief.

1. _____ There is an infinitely wise, omnipotent Creator of the universe and of natural laws, whose protection and favor may be supplicated through worship and prayer. God is a personal God.
2. _____ There is an infinitely intelligent and friendly Being, working according to natural laws through which He expresses His power and goodness. There is the possibility of communication with this Deity in the sense that prayer may at least affect our moral attitude toward nature and toward our own place in the scheme of things.
3. _____ There is a vast, impersonal, spiritual source or principle throughout nature and working in man, incapable of being swayed or communicated with through prayer.
4. _____ Because of our necessary ignorance in this matter, I neither believe nor disbelieve in a God.
5. _____ The only power is natural law. There is neither a personal creator nor an infinite intelligent Being. Nature is wholly indifferent to man. Natural law may be spoken of as "spiritual force," but this in no way adds to or changes its character.
6. _____ The universe is merely a machine. Man and nature are creatures of cause and effect. All notions of a Deity as an intelligent Being or as a "spiritual force" are fictions, and prayer is a useless superstition.

15. The Person of Christ (check the position that best corresponds to your own view)

1. _____ Christ, as the Gospels state, should be regarded as divine--as the human incarnation of God.
2. _____ Christ should be regarded merely as a great prophet or teacher, much as the Muslims accept Mohammed, or as the Chinese accept Confucius.
3. _____ In all probability Christ never lived at all, but is purely mythical figure.
